Wow, it's been a strange summer for many of us, whether for PinkUK punters or businesses... Many in the LGBTQ+ communities, who would usually travel and head to LGBTQ+ festivals and holiday places, instead have found (temporarily, necessary) health restrictions intervened with their plans.

Whether activists, customers or businesses, we have all had to adapt. We offer our huge Pink respect to those of you who are opening up your businesses to serve the LGBTQ+ communities but have encountered confusing, ever-changing and mixed messages from governments - at least for those of us living in the UK but likely elsewhere too. Aside from that, we hope the unusually dry and warm weather in the UK over the spring and summer, and across Europe, has been some compensation. As we approach Autumn/Fall in the northern hemisphere, hopefully we can look forward to clearer and more consistent guidance and opportunities to mix and socialise safely.

Improvements to PinkUk and Terms and Conditions

Free venues: Added an LGBTQ+ friendly/Straight flag that displays on venues that are similarly friendly/ Mixed venues: removed old dating profiles, that have not been updated since 2016. We are slowly removing profiles not updated in the last two years. Added advertising space in our newsletter.

Advertisers: added advertising space in our newsletter.

We recommend all users, listing businesses and advertisers regularly check our terms and conditions as this is what ensures the cooperative community nature of PinkUk and the success of your participation in the site.

Prides/LGBTQ+ events updates

For 2020: we have 150 prides and gay events in UK for 2020.

PinkUk have a total of 454 gay prides and gay events in 44 countries for 2020. Obviously this has been a terrible year for many LGBTQ+ festivals. With most events postponed or cancelled or digital-only.

For 2020: PinkUk have a total of 100 gay prides and gay events in 22 countries for 2021.

If you have a venue or a Pride/Event why not add it to PinkUk? many, I have particularly been struggling with not having contact with those closed to me and zooming is only "fun" the first few times. After that it became more of a reminder of how much I miss people rather than a good way to stay in touch. Full article on PinkUk

My goodness what a summer! You can't do this, but you can do that... on no you can't ...or can! Lots of that and more confusion was the theme of this summer. Like

Did you know?

That research shows gay men are having less sex in the Pandemic? According to US-based online magazine Queerty, an Australian research study shows that gay men say they are having 12 times less sex than before the pandemic.

Not happening?
